FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

InSite Services Names New Director of Technology Development

Kevin Badinger Brings Over 18 Years of Technology Development Experience

DALLAS, TX --- April 3, 2009 – InSite Services, a leading provider of on-demand/SaaS business process management technology services, today announced the appointment of Kevin Badinger to Director of Technology Development. Mr. Badinger will initially lead the technology development efforts for InSite's Conductor™ resource and activity management solution while also helping to direct InSite's overall technology architecture strategies.

Prior to joining InSite Services, Kevin served as Vice-President of Technology for VSXRealtime, Principle Senior Architect for Trintech Group, Senior Software Manager for Globeset, Senior Software Developer for DSC Communications, and software positions at Texas Instruments and IBM Educational Services. In addition, Kevin has been responsible for the architecture and development of financial applications providing reconciliation, cash management and related financial services to over three hundred worldwide Fortune 1000 companies.

"I'm excited that Kevin has joined the InSite team on a full-time basis and as the original technology architect of InSite's Conductor™ resource and activity management solution, his continued leadership will be instrumental in maintaining a high quality of service for current Conductor™ clients and also in delivering new enhancements as part of our service roadmap," stated Doug Brennecke, Vice-President of Technology and Client Services at InSite.
